

How much will be covered

The CDCP will reimburse a percentage of the cost, based on established CDCP fees and your adjusted family net income. You may have to pay additional charges directly to the oral health provider, if:

- your adjusted family net income is between $70,000 and $89,999
- the cost of your oral health care services are more than the established CDCP fees, or
- you and your oral health care provider agree to services that the CDCP doesn't cover
 - you'll need to pay the full cost of these services if you receive them

Co-payments

You may have a co-payment based on your adjusted family net income. A co-payment is the percentage of the CDCP fees that isn't covered by the CDCP, and that you will have to pay directly to the oral health provider. Your co-payment is based on your adjusted family net income.

Co-payments based on adjusted family net income

Adjusted family net income	How much will the CDCP cover	How much you will cover
Lower than $70,000	100% of eligible oral health care service costs will be covered at the CDCP established fees.	0% of the CDCP established fees. You may face additional charges as described below.
Between $70,000 and $79,999	60% of eligible oral health care service costs will be covered at the CDCP established fees.	40% of the CDCP established fees. You may face additional fees as described below.
Between $80,000 and $89,999	40% of eligible oral health care service costs will be covered at the CDCP established fees.	60% of the CDCP established fees. You may face additional fees as described below.

Additional charges

The CDCP fees may not be the same as what providers charge. You may have to pay fees in addition to the potential co-payment if:

- the cost of your oral health care services are more than what the CDCP will reimburse based on the established CDCP fees
- you agree to receive care that the plan doesn't cover

Before receiving oral health care, you should always ask your oral health provider about any costs that won't be covered by the plan. Make sure you know what you'll have to pay directly to your oral health provider ahead of receiving treatment.
